Spaghetti and m-m-m-m meat balls!

More body-building protein than most lunchtime soups or sandwiches.

Big round meat balls and long skinny spaghetti is even more special than kids think. Because it means more complete protein than a gooey peanut butter sandwich or a boiled ham sandwich. Even more than 3 bowls of beef noodle soup. And each serving costs only about 16¢.

But when kids eat Chef Boy-Ar-Dee® Spaghetti and Meat Balls, they think about twirling slippery spaghetti around a fork, or spearing a meat ball right smack in the middle. You could tell them how good it is for them, but they may not believe it. They think spaghetti and meat balls is just plain fun.

as we see it

■ It didn't take long for the critics to conclude that this season's new series were the sorriest collection in years.

The regular shows were, in the words of the New York Times' Jack Gould, "electronic baloney sliced with a minimum of imagination and innovation." To Lawrence Laurent of the Washington Post, this season is "easily the worst" since the "vast wasteland" days of 1960-61. And so on.

■ Apparently they were expecting something more than the usual cops and robbers, cowboys and Indians and husbands and wives. If so, they were being either disingenuous or naive, for as experienced and respected observers of television they should be aware that so long as sponsors are permitted to buy time on specific shows the networks are going to stick to familiar themes. Advertisers want to go where the audience is and the audience is where the familiar themes are.

Television series are made to run for at least 26 weeks and, with luck, for as long as five years or more. We therefore cannot really expect much imagination and innovation. The plots dwindle down to a precious few, for it's a long, long time from September to May. Series television, ground out quickly and economically, cannot possibly offer the quality of a good movie or a carefully produced special.

■ True, specials are getting higher ratings these days, a good indication that when there's a choice, viewers opt for something different. There are polls that "prove" educated viewers are watching less television and there are rumors that even the network vice presidents are bored with the series they've scheduled.

But so long as we have this form of television, with the advertiser picking where his spots will appear, we're going to have weekly series. Considering how many must be turned out, it's a wonder they're as good as they are.

"How we retired in 15 years with $300 a month"

Back in the fifties I took my wife and the kids to visit my folks in Florida for the Christmas holidays. One day I brought in the mail, and my father said, "There's my Phoenix Mutual check, right on time."

I said, "What's a Phoenix Mutual check?" And my father told me it was the only way he and Mom could have retired in the comfort they enjoyed. "And," said my father, "I planned this back when I was your age."

On the plane coming home, my wife, Alice, was reading a magazine. She nudged me. "Look at this ad," she said, "'How we retired in 15 years with $300 a month.'"

"That's Phoenix Mutual," she added. The ad told how a man of 40 (my age then) could retire in 15 years with an income guaranteed for life. I mailed in the coupon, and soon a booklet came. We picked the plan we liked, and now I don't know where the 15 years went.

You, too, can plan to have an income of from $50 to $300 a month or more, if you start early enough. Send the coupon and receive, by mail, a free booklet on this and other plans.

The first Headache Sedative COPE®

...new relief for today's nervous tension headaches

COPE is a new, break-through formula. COPE is unique. The relief it brings to nervous tension headaches is phenomenal.

What COPE Is

COPE's amazing effectiveness comes from extra amounts of the most powerful pain reliever you can buy, combined with a relaxer missing from all leading headache remedies. Methapyrilene fumarate. Not one of the leading pain relievers has this genuine, proven relaxer. Not so-called extra-strength tablets. Not buffered aspirin. Not ordinary combination-of-ingredients. COPE and COPE alone brings you this remarkable combination of potent pain reliever and gentle relaxer.

What COPE Does

COPE helps relax nervous tension that so often causes a headache, aggravates it, even brings it back. Minutes after you take just two COPE tablets, you'll feel pain and nervous tension drain away. You feel fit, equal to today's pressured life.

The First of Its Kind

Today's remedy for today's headache. COPE is the first headache sedative. Try it once. Discover the phenomenal relief it brings to nervous tension headaches. Get COPE... the first headache sedative.

WHO KILLED HOLLYWOOD SOCIETY? ?

First of five parts by
CLEVELAND
AMORY

Way back in the days when you and I and Scott Fitzgerald were young, Hollywood may not have been Society but it was sure Hollywood. And somebody done it in.

Who, you ask, dunit? Who killed it —that wonderful world of “Hollywood Society” the way it was? Not the way it is now, or might have been, or even should have been—but the way it was.

Was it, you ask, the butler? And then you think of Arthur Treacher, and you just know it couldn't have been he.

Was it, then, the mysterious stranger? A Vilma Banky, for example, or a Theda Bara. We never did wholly trust her—a girl whose very name, for heaven's sake, was an anagram of Arab Death.

Can anyone say for certain that Hollywood did not go to its final reward at the hands of gangsters? Call the roll of Warners' famous "murderers' row": Cagney, Garfield, Bogart, Edward G. Robinson and George Raft—as they pass before you, don't overlook a one.

Again, horrible as it was, could it have been a horror story? Was it Frankenstein, Dracula or Fu Manchu? Karloff, Bela Lugosi or the Chanays, père or fils? Was it the Bat, the Cat or even Godzilla? The Man with Four Heads, the Beast with Five Fingers or the Ghoul Next Door? The Blob, the Thing or just Them?

Was it, perhaps, a simple story of good guys and bad guys—except that, for once, neither the 7th Cavalry nor the 101st Airborne came up in time?

Or was it television?

Television, which swept in with an era of weary young series actors—unkempt, unshod, unshaven, nonconformist, nonparty-going and "Society"—hating Method actors—and, not long after, the Hippie Generation, which scorns as "square" the things Hollywood has always held so holy.

One thing is certain. Hollywood itself was, to begin with, only a dream. And explorers looking for it, like Christopher Columbus seeking the Indies, or Ponce de Leon looking for the Fountain of Youth, found it not by design, but by accident.

D.W. Griffith himself, that intrepid pioneer of the close-up and the fade-out, was in fact sent out from New York by the old Biograph company to shoot one of its first full-length pictures—"In Old California." D. W. had settled in downtown L.A. but, as fate would have it, soon moved, to shoot his outdoor scenes, uptown to a place called Hollywood. And in no time at all he was shooting, right there, everything from downtown New York to the Sahara desert. "A rock is a rock and a tree is a tree," the saying was. "We'll shoot it in Griffith Park."

And before you could say "Cut," another pioneer came. Cecil B. DeMille, sent West by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company to shoot "The Squaw Man," recalled, from a previous visit West, a little place named Flagstaff, Ariz. Here, he fondly remembered, there was lots of sunshine and, around the station, what particularly appealed to the careful Mr. DeMille, lots of apparently free Indians.

Arriving in Flagstaff this time, however, expecting to hear the familiar, friendly "Ready when you are, C.B.," Mr. DeMille found instead a raging blizzard and not a single Indian, for free, for hire or for reservation. In disgust he climbed back on the train and proceeded to the end of the line. Here, near the intersection of Hollywood and Vine, he found an empty barn for rent for the then outrageous price of $80 a month.

"We'd go off," recalls director Leo McCarey of those first movie-making days, "early in the morning with a horse and a buggy, a boy and a girl and a villain—and we'd come back that night with a picture. We didn't even have a script."

Against such a backdrop, Hollywood Society was born. Nonetheless, month by month, year by year, the dream factory grew. And to it came, one by one, not just the dreamers but the molders of the dream. First, there was William Fox, a cloth sponger. He owned a nickelodeon. Then there was Marcus Loew; he owned a penny arcade. Adolph Zukor didn't even own his; he was a partner in a penny arcade. As for Carl Laemmle, →

he didn't want to go into the business at all. Wanting to buy a larger clothing store, he bought by accident a picture screen and chairs. Louis B. Mayer was a rag picker. Harry Cohn hustled pool. As for the brothers Warner, they were shoe repairmen before they moved up in the world to a butcher shop. Westward they came, all of them.

It didn't matter what they did. Said one of them, Lewis Selznick, in a memorable moment, "The motion-picture business takes less brains than anything else in the world."

These were the men who moved in to build not only the world's greatest entertainment empire, but a whole celluloid civilization—one in which, from the beginning, the barbarians were not outside the gates, but inside, running the show.

In the early days of Hollywood Society, actors and actresses were regarded with dark suspicion (signs on boarding houses announced: "No Dogs or Actors"). Making movies was considered to be such a step down, and backward, from the "legitimate" stage that the actors and actresses who played in them tried to do so anonymously. And the studios, to protect them, did not allow their names to be given out.

The girl who changed all that was the original "Biograph Girl," Florence Lawrence. Lured from Vitagraph (where she had been getting $15 a week) to Biograph, for the (princess-ly?) salary of $25 a week, she went on from there to Laemmle's newly formed Imp Company. But Biograph refused to take Miss Lawrence's move to Imp sitting down. First they disavowed her existence. Then, when that failed to have any effect, they declared that she had vanished. Finally, in desperation, they had a story published in the St. Louis newspapers that reported she had been killed by a streetcar.

The shoe was now on Imp's foot. They published advertisements which denounced this "blackest and at the same time silliest lie," and declared that Miss Lawrence not only was alive and well, but also that she would make, accompanied by a leading man named King Baggott, a personal appearance in St. Louis.

On a fateful day in March 1910, more people met Miss Lawrence's train in St. Louis than had appeared the week before to welcome President Taft—and not only the star system, but the whole system of Star Society, was born.

At first the system grew slowly, but with the emergence of Hollywood, it at least had a center—and soon to the corner of Sunset and Vine, from the far corners of the earth, came the boys who would be gods and the girls who would be goddesses.

Second only to Florence Lawrence was the one and only Mary Pickford. Born Gladys Smith in Toronto, she first appeared on the stage at 5. After the opening of a Belasco play, she informed that producer, "I'm 13 now, and at the crossroads of my life."

At 16, she waited patiently in Griffith's office at Biograph in New York. He, completely taken with "such perfect little curls as I had ever seen," promptly signed her for $5 a picture. Several years later she herself drew up her contract, which called for $10,000 a week, plus half the profits of her pictures.

From the First World War to 1924, Screen Service, then Hollywood's largest employment agency, registered 100,000 persons. Of these, exactly five became stars.

One of the five, Clark Gable, in 1924 arrived after sitting up all night in a train from Portland, with four handkerchiefs, two clean shirts and $2 in cash. Before his money ran out, he had not only met Mrs. Josephine Dillon—teacher of, among others, Gary Cooper and Lupe Velez—but had married her. He was 24, she was 41, but not until after another 10 years, and another marriage to another lady 10 years his senior, Mrs. Ria Langham, did Gable make it to stardom.

Lucille LeSueur at 9 waited tables; at 12 did every bit of housework for 30 boys and girls; at 14, dancing in a chorus in Detroit, managed by mistake to have her skirt catch the drink of J. J. Shubert. Shortly Lucille LeSueur became Joan Crawford.

Greta Garbo was brought to America by a very reluctant Louis B. Mayer, who thought she was "too fat." Garbo spent her first months in Hollywood in the house of her director, Mauritz Stiller. At a crucial moment studio officials were brought out to see her. "Wearing a rather commodious bathing suit," her biographer reported, "she was contentedly peeling potatoes."

Garbo to the contrary, the golden days of the silver screen were at hand. It was the new El Dorado. "Is there," someone asked the late William Randolph Hearst, "any real money in movies?" Replied Hearst, "There are several millions of my money in it."

In those early days of Hollywood Society, Gloria Swanson took her baths in a solid gold bathtub. Dolores del Rio would drink only from a golden chalice—it had to be brought to the set whenever she was working. Miss del Rio's "exquisite complexion" came, it was said, from her favorite salad—of rose petals and orchid leaves.

In the house of one star, Charles Ray, there was even gold on the door-knobs. At the home of the executive Winfield Sheehan, guests dined on solid gold dishes and drank from golden goblets.

Not everything was gold and silver. Some stars preferred color. Tom Mix had a drawing room with a fountain that sprayed water in all sorts of colors. Another grandee had four faucets that gushed forth Scotch, bourbon, champagne and beer.

Clara Bow, the flaming red-haired "It Girl," rode down Hollywood Boulevard in a Kissel convertible with seven red chow dogs.

"The Profile," Wallace Reid, drove another convertible—it was robin's-egg blue, and the horn played "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Vamp Theda Bara also favored blue. She dressed in indigo to accentuate her pallor, and posed for photographers amid skeletons, skulls and crystal balls.

Valentino preferred black. He literally lived in it. His famed hilltop castle, "Falcon Lair," had black walls, a black bedroom with a boat-shaped bed in gold and black, a black living room with black patent-leather furniture and a black marble floor.

In contrast, Lupe Velez chose an all-white motif. Indeed, when she committed suicide it was reported her body was found in a white dress on an all-white bed in an all-white room which included white carpets, white draperies and even white statues.

John Barrymore went in for sports. He had a bowling green, a skeet range and, at a time when they were few and far between, three swimming pools.

Grandest of all the Hollywood homes—one which is still standing today—was that of Harold Lloyd, an awe-inspiring castle surrounded by terraced gardens, cascading fountains and a private golf course, and boasting inside, among other treasures, the world's largest home Christmas tree, complete with 50,000 ornaments.

To Marion Davies went the honor of being the hostess with the most houses. Not only was she the mistress of San Simeon—the baronial castle of her sovereign lordship, Mr. Hearst—but she also had, for what she described as her own personal "cozy entertaining," a colossal, 110-room →

Georgian mansion on the Santa Monica ocean front.

Miss Davies too had three swimming pools; counting the ocean as one, she had one fresh-water pool and another salt-water one—the latter traversed by a marble bridge imported from Italy. Inside the house were a private movie theater, two bars and three dining rooms.

On the rare occasions when she also acted, Miss Davies was not homeless. She had, built by M-G-M at Hearst's insistence, her own 14-room "studio bungalow." When she and Hearst's Cosmopolitan Pictures moved to Warner Brothers, one of the clauses in her contract insisted that the bungalow be moved the 15-mile distance from Culver City to Burbank.

The gold standard prevailed, too, at "Pickfair," the regal residence of Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and America's Sweetheart, Mary Pickford. But even here, among the gold plates, the waiters in knee breeches, and the rest, the late Douglas Sr. could not resist a practical joke. At "Pickfair" dinners, for example, there were "break-away" knives and forks, and even at dinner for visiting royalty, chairs were wired so that, at a signal from Fairbanks to his major domo, visitors could be given the "hot seat."

Fred Allen defined Hollywood as a place where the movie stars wore sunglasses even in church. "They're afraid," Mr. Allen noted, "God might recognize them and ask them for their autographs."

Even the Hollywood jokes, however, had a kind of Society of their own. Historian Alva Johnston, for example, declared that in the days before Samuel Goldwyn arrived, Hollywood's official unconscious humorists were two brothers who made short comedies. "But," says Johnston, "as the brothers became obscure and Sam became famous, the old anecdotes deserted the brothers and attached themselves to Goldwyn."

From the moment Goldwyn arrived on the Hollywood social scene, he was granted a virtual corner on the malaprop market. The cornerstone of the Goldwyn legend, all Sam-watchers now agree, was the immortal line, "I can answer you in two words—im possible." Second was his almost equally famed "Include me out." Almost as well-known, however, were such lines as "A verbal contract isn't worth the paper it's written on," "A happy company makes a bad picture," and "Anybody who goes to a psychiatrist ought to have his head examined."

On one occasion a director, asked his opinion of a script, declared it was too caustic. "To hell with the cost," said Sam. "If it's a good picture, we'll make it." On another occasion, returning from a successful trip selling his pictures abroad, he proudly entered his board room. "Gentlemen," he said, "I've invented a new slogan. 'Goldwyn pictures griddle the Earth'."

Always suspicious of his publicity men—Goldwyn was convinced that somehow or other they were at the bottom of any news of wars or elections or anything else that took people's attention away from Goldwyn pictures—Sam was, however, at least once highly pleased with his advertising department. This occurred when he was presented with an advertisement of his picture "We Live Again." "THE DIRECTORIAL GENIUS OF MAM-OULIAN," the advertisement read, "THE BEAUTY OF STEN AND THE PRODUCING GENIUS OF GOLD-WYN HAVE BEEN COMBINED TO MAKE THE WORLD'S GREATEST ENTERTAINMENT."

"That," said Sam, "is the kind of ad I like. Facts. No exaggeration." END

SPECTACULAR UNDERPINNINGS FOR A SHOW

THREE STARS DEMONSTRATE THAT THEIR LEGS ARE SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT

From the tendo calcaneus up past the gastrocnemius and the semimembranosus and terminating in the oft-times delightful gluteus maximus, there is an area referred to by the more clinically minded as the lower limbs. Legs, to the more debauched. Shapely gams, to devotees of the ecdysiast's art. Stems. The trio of the above-mentioned to be seen at right belong to the trio of mouths found above, and the verbal juxtaposition of these two extremities is the whole point of the song the three ladies will be singing on The Carol Burnett Show for Nov. 20 (CBS). The ladies are, of course, Martha Raye, Miss Burnett and Juliet Prowse; and the song, in which they "... give thanks for their shanks," celebrates the virtues of legs vis-à-vis the male sex. The ditty has some good words for mouths and their allurements, but the trio asserts that legs are an equally efficient means of expressing such diverse emotions as "Anger, timidity, fright, lust . . . and rejection." Could be, but they also come in pretty handy for holding you up and getting you from one end of the room to the other. Be that as it may, the three sets belong to the ladies, but not in the proper order of the two pictures. So before reading the captions—that is, if you haven't already—try to match the various feminine parts. If you look carefully you'll see at least one giveaway clue. Maybe more.

Next to frozen chickens, he's Jasper's biggest asset

George Lindsey, as

'Goober,' is an authentic home-town hero

The town of Jasper, Ala., is so small the sign at the city limits reads, "Welcome to Jasper and hurry back." That's what home-town-boy George Lindsey says joshingly, and George is Jasper's favorite son.

George is the hayseed feller we know as "Goober" in the TV town of Mayberry—a video version of Jasper—on The Andy Griffith Show.

Truth is, Jasper's a town of 11,800 at last count, though there were a good sight fewer souls when George was growing up there in the Lindseys' Gingerbread Gothic dwelling two blocks from the courthouse. "We was the kind of folks that was too poor to paint and too proud to whitewash." Jasper was dying on the vine in those days, with the coal fields playing out. Today, with its thriving new industry—frozen-chicken processing—and its world-famous celebrity — Goober — Jasper's back on the map of Alabama.

The whole town turned out for "Goober Day" when the local boy returned in triumph. It was just like a regular holiday; folks didn't even have to put coins in the parking meters. When the ceremony got under way, George was still waiting at the old homestead, where he could barely hear the high school band down on the courthouse steps. Somebody had forgotten his official escort. He phoned the police department in panic: "Come and get me! I'm not about to miss my own day!" When George got there, the mayor handed him the key to the city, and a brass doorknob to boot.

"Goober Day" at George's alma mater—Florence State College in Florence, Ala.—turned out to be an even bigger shindig. There were 5000 people waiting at the airport and 50,000 turned out for the parade. As he recalls the high point of the ceremony: "FSC took me off disciplinary probation after 13 years."

And the hoopla couldn't be more gratifying: "It's better to be an is-now than a never-was, I'll tell you that!" For George has achieved his life's ambition: "I always wanted to take on the big apple and see if I could do it. I wanted to show my home town I could be somebody. If I came back as 'Leo Tard,' the Hollywood actor, that would mean nothing to Jasper. But Goober—now that's something they understand."

Like Andy Griffith before him, George Lindsey started out as a high school teacher and athletic coach. "I had to teach history because the coach was the only one able to control the class. I didn't know all that much about American history. What I told them could be boiled down to two words: 'We won!'"

He itched to get out of Jasper into the wider world. "The most exciting thing you could do on Saturday night back there was get a date and go down and watch the A&P truck unload." So he got married and set his sights on, of all things, the New York stage. It was a question of who was shook the most, Jasper or George. "It's a frightening thing going through the Lincoln Tunnel and taking on show business." He found it wasn't easy. "That first Christmas we had stuffed Spam."

He arrived on the American Theater Wing's doorstep. They didn't think there was anything unusual about it. "In Shakespeare class I was always the one in baggy tights." He finally managed to eliminate his Alabama drawl. "But then I couldn't get an acting job. My new accent didn't go with my funny face." He thought about changing his face: "My nose had been broken three times playing college football, and I was going to have it broken again and get some steel rods put up there to straighten it out." Just in time he saw the light, restored his drawl and kept his face. "It brings in those residual checks, I'll tell you that."

In Hollywood George has played 40 TV one-shots and 60-odd episodes as Andy Griffith's side-kick, following Jim Nabors, a hard thing to do. He and his wife and two small children live on a half-acre spread in San Fernando Valley. Between video seasons he plays rodeo dates before crowds of up to 10,000, sings with the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, and has become a regular judge at the annual Miss U.S.A. contest in Miami Beach. He's living high off the hog. "I'm the only one at the Eden Roc who washes down escargots with grape Kool-Aid."

There's one thing about Goober they can't fathom back at Jasper. "They ask my mother how her boy can make so much money working only 30 minutes a week. Drives 'em right up the wall."

An extraordinary film and a couple of very good ones mark this network-movie week which also offers us the first of the season's tailored-for-television films.

"Hud," which is working its way to classic stature since it emerged as a top film of 1963, provides us with a straightforward, powerful portrait of a contemporary Texas household that transcends portraiture to re-examine not only old-fashioned virtues but also new-fashioned values. Martin Ritt's film also goes beyond the obvious cynical conclusion that the heels inherit the earth; it is a shattering recognition of their existence and their ability to flourish among us. Paul Newman is superb as Hud, the soulless man who not only remarks that he doesn't give a damn — but doesn't. Melvin Douglas portrays his granite-principled father, Brandon de Wilde his adolescent nephew, and Patricia Neal, in the role that won her an Oscar, their housekeeper, a woman who has lived the hard way and retained compassion and dignity.

"The Chalk Garden" is a pat and ultimately watered-down version of Enid Bagnold's stage comedy of manners, but thanks to fine performances and direction it emerges on screen as an engrossing human drama, spiced with suspense and sparked with humor. Deborah Kerr makes a fascinating enigma of the mysterious madrigal; Dame Edith Evans creates a beautiful blend of charm and emptyheartedness; and John and Hayley Mills are impeccable as the butler and the problem child. "Days of Wine and Roses" too is watered-down from its source, J. P. Miller's brilliant Playhouse 90 drama, if only in one important aspect: the substitution of a relatively bland Lee Remick in the role of the wife, created with subtlety and skill on television by Piper Laurie. The film's distinction is Jack Lemmon's performance as the alcoholic husband. A grim and graphic depiction of the tragedy of drink, the movie is for those who can take it straight.

The distinction of "The Bedford Incident" is Richard Widmark's excellent portrait of a desperate psychotic perfectionist in his role of the skipper of a sub-stalking destroyer on NATO patrol off Greenland. Sidney Poitier is bland and beyond belief in a thankless role. And the distinction of "McIntock!," a simple-minded potpourri of Western clichés, is its ultimate thesis that the way to woo back your wife is to strip her to her undies, dunk her in a variety of liquids, crash her through break-away structures and give her a public spanking with small coal shovel.

We can only expect better from the week's second Western. "Stranger on the Run," the first World Premiere offering of the season and at this point an unknown quantity. It stars Henry Fonda and Dan Duryea, among others, and was produced by the man who gave us "The Rounders" movie. Expectations are therefore in order.

Murder Trial Is Filmed for TV

Home audiences could be treated soon to a courtroom drama far more authentic than anything Perry Mason ever dishd up. CBS News has filmed an entire murder trial in Houston and is so intrigued with its raw emotional appeal that an hour-long version of it may be aired in prime time. CBS producer Joe Wershba got permission to move his camera crew into the Houston court (Texas and Colorado are the only states occasionally permitting cameras at trials) in order to film a few minutes of noted defense lawyer Percy Foreman in action. Foreman is one of five attorneys (the others: Melvin Belli, F. Lee Bailey, Louis Nizer and Edward Bennett Williams) whose legalistic techniques are being studied for a forthcoming CBS News hour tentatively titled "The Real Defenders." In the Houston case, Foreman was defending a Mrs. Virginia Deane Thomson, accused of fatally shooting her husband. Wershba, sensing a rare opportunity, got permission from his CBS bosses to film the entire proceedings. The trial ended, as it turned out, with the jury acquitting the accused woman on grounds of self-defense. Wershba returned to New York with 63,000 feet of color film he describes as "absolutely fantastic." He thinks the inconspicuous presence of his cameras at the six-day trial could make a case for permitting cameras in courtrooms more often.

TV's viewers again have confounded the network programmers. The new season, expected to be a big one for TV cowhands, has turned instead into a boom for buffoons. The new sagebrush shoot-'em-ups have, in the language of show biz, laid eggs. The tube watchers, it would seem, are getting their action kicks these days from the abundance of prime-time movies, and when they want something different they're switching most often to song-and-skit shows. In the Oct. 2-8 Nielsens Dean Martin was sixth in popularity (behind two movies, Lucy, Andy Griffith and Gomer Pyle); Ed Sullivan was 10th, Jackie Gleason 13th, Red Skelton 20th, Carol Burnett 21st. To be sure, some variety shows fared less well: The Smothers Brothers were 33rd, Kraft Music Hall 37th, Jerry Lewis 38th, and Hollywood Palace was in trouble in 77th place. Of the Westerns, on the other hand, only old-timers made the top 30: Bonanza in eighth place, the Virginian 17th, Gunsmoke 25th and Daniel Boone 30th. The best any of seven new oaters could muster was 45th ranking, for The High Chaparral. Dundee and the Culhane, already marked for oblivion, was 65th; Hondo came in 68th, and Custer, likewise headed thataway, scored a disastrous 79th, among 83 programs.

Universal, which turns out those World Premiere movies-for-TV, is talking with NBC about undertaking a supercolossal one, a sort of dramatic equivalent to ABC's evening-long "Africa."

LETTERS

Correspondence for this department should be addressed to Letters Department, TV GUIDE, Radnor, Pa., 19088. All letters must be signed. Names withheld upon request.

VIEWER SERVICE

If you wish to write comments to those in charge of a specific show, you should send your letters to: (Name of Show), TV GUIDE Viewer Service, Box 800, Radnor, Pa., 19088. These letters will be forwarded to proper executives.

HRUMPH!

Having spent an enjoyable hour viewing "The Demon Under the Bed" episode of The Danny Thomas Hour, we would like to comment. Mr. Thomas evidently felt it necessary to explain the story line to us—the boob audience. We wonder how the very excellent cast felt about Mr. Thomas's frequent explanatory appearances, which I fear, outnumbered theirs?

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lucas
Camp Lejeune, N.C.

LITTLE BIG HORN, WHERE ARE YOU?

By this time it is obvious that despite objections by several thousand Indians (including the commissioner of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Robert L. Bennett) and many non-Indians interested in historical accuracy, the program Custer is here to stay—at least this season. I find it difficult to believe that the United States is so hard up for "heroes" that they must be manufactured from a self-seeking politician! Perhaps another network would be interested in running another series showing the other side of the "Indian question." Yes, I am prejudiced. I am proudly of Indian ancestry.

Lee A. Higdon
Salisbury, Md.

THINGS WRONG

If only the first 45 minutes of trivia had been as good as the last 15. The last 15 minutes of Just Her—just Barbra Streisand—being herself almost made up for it.

Stephanie Lee
Tarrytown, N.Y.

Was there a sale this season on Elvis Presley movies? It's pretty tough for those of us who don't care for him.

Diane Toth
Mentor, Ohio

It is unforgivable that even the dull, repetitious pen of Cleveland Amory can find damning fault with one of the season's best offerings, Cimarron Strip, ["Review," Oct. 7], while on the other hand devote almost a page of schmaltz to that excuse for comedy, The Flying Nun.

John J. Coffey
State College, Pa.

After making announcements of their extravagant purchases of recent film greats, the networks then throw us the skeletal remains of once fine motion pictures, laced generously with commercials, and fully expect to be endeared to the viewing audience for all times. Any resemblance between the televising of "Splendor in the Grass" and the film we remember enjoying in the theaters is purely coincidental. Our reaction to chopped-up TV movies: Why bother?

Mr. and Mrs. David K. Hanser
Port Washington, N.Y.

SINGING ON THE RUN

Caught Ben Gazzara singing the other night and now I know why he has to run for his life.

COLOR Michigan State's Spartans vs. Notre Dame's Fighting Irish at Notre Dame, Ind. Last year's clash failed to settle the argument over who was No. 1 in college football. It ended in a 10-10 tie, leading some pigskin pundits to accuse the Irish of "Tying One For the Gipper." With no significant National ranking at stake, today's battle shapes up as a grudge match. The Spartans have a shifty pass-run quarterback in Jimmy Raye. The explosive Irish offense is spearheaded by the quarterbacking of Terry Hanratty and Coley O'Brien, and the pass receptions of Jim Seymour. Chris Schenkel and Bud Wilkinson report. Rosters are in the Close-up on page A-8. (Live)

Cameras are positioned at the 15th-18th holes of the par-72, 7069-yard course. The $110,000 event offers a winner's share of $20,000.

As you might expect, sand is a problem in the Sahara. Abundant traps and bunkers await the errant shots of gambling, inaccurate or unlucky golfers. No less of a hazard are the unpredictable desert winds. Last year they blew the scores sky high, and even managed to level the press tent.

In case of a tie, cameras will cover the sudden-death play-off. Jack Drees, John Derr, Jim McArthur and Bob Toski report the action. (Taped from a live telecast)

SPECIAL COLOR "Wide World of Sports" covers the Floyd Patterson-Jerry Quarry heavyweight-championship elimination bout, telecast live from Los Angeles.

The point-scored fight, set for 12 rounds, is a long-awaited return match. In a controversial June bout, Patterson came off the deck twice to battle Quarry to a draw.

Patterson, 32, is the only man to have held the heavyweight crown twice. (He has failed in two bids to regain it a third time.) Recent wins on the comeback trail include an impressive four-round KO of England's Henry Cooper.

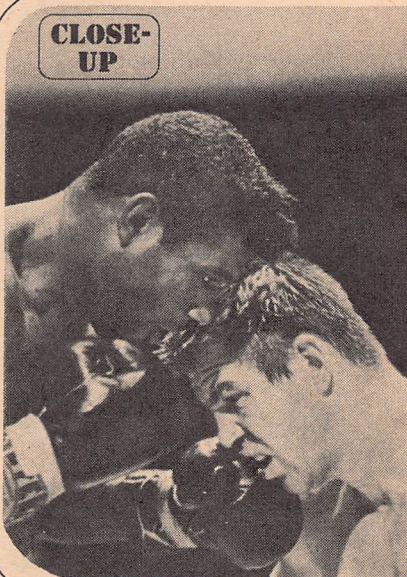

Quarry, 10 years Patterson's junior, is a stand-up fighter with a good right. He has beaten Brian London and Billy Daniels.

Films of earlier elimination bouts will also be shown.

"I quit"

Two words that can change your life.

Although it's not always the smartest thing to do, sometimes it's the only thing to do. For a number of reasons.

A personality conflict. Low salary. No room for advancement. Uninteresting work. Or you just might be in the wrong kind of job for you. If that's the case you've got every right to say it.

But before you make any hasty decisions, get in touch with us. We are the leader in our field, with over 300 offices and more than 3000 Professional Employment Counsellors ready and waiting to help you. Maybe we'll tell you you'd be better off where you are. But if you really want a new job we can help you get it.

Just pick up the phone and call our nearest office listed in the white pages. Chances are you'll have a couple of words to say to us, too. Like, "Thank you."

9:00 7 11 13 MOVIE—Drama

This widely acclaimed 1963 film is a tough, uncompromising portrait of a contemporary heel.

Deep down, Hud Bannon is just what he appears to be: greedy, callous and cynical. The drama, filmed in Texas, probes Hud's strained relationships with his aging, high-principled father; the impressionable young nephew who idolizes him; and Alma, the Bannons' earthy housekeeper.

Oscars went to Patricia Neal, Melvyn Douglas and cinematographer James Wong Howe. Paul Newman, director Martin Ritt, and screenwriters Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank Jr. received Oscar nominations.

At 4½ she's reading 3rd grade books

not at all! your child, too can be reading one, two or three years
beyond his present age level...even if he's a "poor"
reader now*

Prove it to yourself... with this 7 day free trial!

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child.

At age four and a half, she's already choosing her own books (on her own library card) at the Berkeley, Cal. library.

She reads (and understands) books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read (or improved their reading skills) with a simple inexpensive Phonics Reading Kit that actually makes reading fun.

Listen and Learn with Phonics was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinates eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on the phonograph record, sees them in his book and repeats them himself. This makes an absorbing game of better reading, better spelling—with amazing results!

Six Teaching Games Included FREE with Each Listen and Learn Phonics Set

These "Learning Tools" are simple to use! You don't need special teaching skills to use this program. Nor do you need any special knowledge of phonics.

In fact, your child needs no special supervision on your part. This "Listen and Learn" set is so simple, so fascinating, he can learn "on his own" without help (and without promptings).

Teachers and parents acclaim results

"I received your Combination Teaching Set and am positively delighted with it!... your marvelous approach to reading is just what we need." Mrs. Rogavin, Central High School, Snyder, N.Y.

"We purchased 'Listen and Learn with Phonics'... for our nine year old son... within two weeks his reading had improved 100%." Mrs. Gregory Knight, San Leandro, Cal.

7-Day FREE Trial—Plus a 4-Month Money-Back Guarantee!

Results are so dramatic, the publishers will make the complete kit available with an equally dramatic FREE trial and guarantee.

You can test the kit free for seven days. Then use the kit for four months and return it for full refund if you're not convinced it is worth many times its modest cost.

See for yourself how fast your child can learn to read. Just fill out and mail the coupon below. There's no obligation, and six teaching games are included free —yours to keep whether you buy or not. Americana Interstate, a division of Grolier, Inc., publishers of Book of Knowledge, Mundelein, Ill.

Report from Cuba

8:00 6 9 10:00 9 NET JOURNAL

Cuban writer: "Fidel is the revolution, the revolution is Fidel."

COLOR This in-depth report surveys the progress of Castro's revolution.

The hour blends films showing many aspects of life in Cuba; interviews with political figures and observers; and conversations with the people, who—for the most part — are solidly behind their leader.

Cameras focus on a meeting of the Organization of Latin-American Solidarity, attended by Stokely Carmichael and Viet Cong officials.

Among those discussing Castro and Cuba are James Reston of the New York Times, who covered the OLAS conference; and Lee Lockwood, author of "Castro's Cuba, Cuba's Fidel."

Produced by Richard Moore and Saul Landau, narrated by Moore, photographed and edited by Irving Saram and Philip Greene, all of KQED. (60 min.)

Stranger on the Run

COLOR Henry Fonda and Anne Baxter star in the first of this season's movies made especially for TV.

Set in the Southwest of 1885, the drama revolves around the hunt for murder suspect Ben Chamberlain. In the bleak and lonely town of Banner, the crime provides some rare excitement for peace officer Vince McKay and his deputies.

McKay disregards the question of guilt and turns the chase into a cruel game. He sets the suspect free, with a horse, supplies—and a one-hour head start.

Directed by Donald Siegel. Dean Riesner based his script on a story by Reginald Rose.

10:00 5 10 12 HARRY REASONER

SPECIAL COLOR Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy and Harry Reasoner take viewers to No. 83 Beals St., Brookline, Mass., for a look at the home where the late President Kennedy was born.

This was the first home of Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy—they lived there from 1914 to 1920—and it holds many memories. Mrs. Kennedy reminisces warmly about bringing up children in the public spotlight and the family's home life.

At greater length, Mrs. Kennedy recalls the late President's early troubles at school (his father had to straighten things out), the family's participation in the Presidential campaign, her feelings when JFK was inaugurated and his feelings about the burdens and opportunities of the Presidency.

Produced by Harry Morgan, who created this series' "Wyeth Phenomenon" and other highly rated documentaries.

SPECIAL COLOR As much a figure of legend as a fact of life, the grizzly bear was hated by early settlers; worshipped and feared by Indians. Today, the lordly beast has almost been exterminated.

This first of four National Geographic specials examines the work of two men who are trying to save "the bear that walks like a man" from extinction.

In Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park, cameras visit Frank and John Craighead, pioneers in grizzly-bear research. Films show how the bears are captured with tranquilizer darts, studied, tagged and fitted with tiny tracking transmitters.

Biographical sketches of the Craigheads cover their studies of other animals and provide a close-up look at the rigorous life of a wildlife biologist.

Alexander Scourby narrates. Written and produced for David L. Wolper Productions by Irwin Rosten. (60 min.)

Now Possible To Shrink Hemorrhoids Stop Itching and Relieve Pain IN MOST CASES.

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases—to stop burning itch, relieve pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids. Tests by doctors proved in case after case, while gently relieving pain and itching, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H®. There is no other formula like it for the treatment of hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

CLOSE-UP

MOVIE—Drama 9:00 5 10 12

Jack Lemmon broke away from light-comedy roles to win recognition as a dramatic actor in this 1962 film.

J. P. Miller's screenplay is a graphic account of a young married couple's battle against alcoholism. Miller adapted the script from his own award-winning "Playhouse 90" drama of 1958.

The film was also a change-of-pace for director Blake Edwards, whose comedy credits include "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and two Peter Sellers vehicles, "A Shot in the Dark" and "The Pink Panther." Lemmon and Lee Remick received Oscar nominations, and the title song won an Academy Award for Henry Mancini and Johnny Mercer. Cinematography by Phil Lathrop.

10:00 7 NATION OF IMMIGRANTS

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy: "... the truth is, we all got off a boat. ..."

SPECIAL This David L. Wolper documentary focuses on immigration to America; tracing its tide and celebrating its splendor.

Of the millions who fled oppression and poverty to come to America, a handful became famous; and some became wealthy. But all took part in the vision of building a nation as great as their dreams. Interviews include reminiscences of immigrant experiences by photographer Edward Steichen, conductor Leopold Stokowski, opera singer Salvatore Baccaloni and Leo Rosten, who later wrote vividly and charmingly of new citizen H*y*m*a*n K*a*p*a*n.

Films also recall the efforts of the pompous and prejudiced who have tried to create a "pure" America, cleansed of "foreigners."

Senator Kennedy introduces the hour, based on the book by JFK. Richard Basehart narrates. Folk singer Buffy Sainte-Marie performs her song "Welcome, Welcome, Emmigrante."

An Evening's Journey to Conway, Mass.

COLOR Poet-playwright Archibald MacLeish introduces his latest play, a celebration of America's small-town heritage.

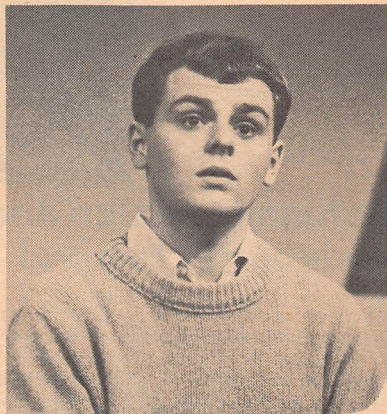

The drama opens as a teen-age boy—any boy—is leaving Conway, the town he hates for being too small, too dull and very insignificant. But before he goes, the ghosts of Conway's long-dead founders and builders come alive to teach him the value of his birthplace.

The play makes a plea for the appreciation of our heritage; it asks us to realize that even the smallest hamlet represents a splendid victory over hard times and a hostile environment.

AUDIÉNCIE PARTICIPATION

FIRST, THEY PARK THEIR INHIBITIONS

When celebrities go on this daytime show, they must be ready to answer questions like 'What do you think of sex?'

BY EDITH EFRON

What is life all about?

If you had to trade your soul to the devil, what one thing would you demand in return?

If you could marry any fictional character, whom would you choose and why?

If you could be guaranteed that you would get away with it, what would you do?

What do you consider your own worst habit?

Try these questions on for size. And then, if you think you'd be curious to know how they—and hundreds of other similar questions—are answered by such celebrities as Zsa Zsa Gabor, Peter Lawford, Sammy Davis Jr., Olivia de Havilland, Peter Falk, Robert Vaughn, Kaye Ballard, Barbara Feldon, Robert Culp, etc., etc., etc.—tune in NBC's panel show called Personality.

Personality was created and is produced by Bob Stewart, who has acted in the same capacities for some of TV's most successful game shows (To Tell the Truth, Password, The Price Is Right and Eye Guess). His new show is based on several solid premises: (1) that the public is curious about what celebrities are "really" like; (2) that celebrities are curious about what other celebrities are "really" like; and (3) that celebrities are curious about what the public thinks they are "really" like.

With some research sleight of hand—mainly consisting of endless behind-the-scenes interviews and public-opinion polls—and a complex format, this single show caters to all these curiosities simultaneously. It accomplishes this feat in three on-the-air stages: (1) by getting three celebrity panelists to guess how other (absent) celebrities have answered certain pointed questions, then (2) by getting the panelists to guess each other's attitudes and (3) by having them guess what the public thinks about each of the celebrities.

The basic preshow research tool on which the program is based is The Master Questionnaire—a document of some 30-odd pages containing hundreds and hundreds of questions of a personal nature devised almost entirely by producer Stewart. Stewart draws from these questions in interviewing his celebrities—and they are highly provocative.

There's a heavy sampling of love-marriage-sex questions: "What do you think of sex?" . . . "What's the best way to keep monogamy from turning into monotony?"

There's a large number of pure imagination questions: "If everyone in the country were changing places with one another for 24 hours, with whom would you like to change?" . . . "If you slept during the next 10 years, what's the first thing you'd like to know when you woke up?" . . .

Then there are ethical questions: "Whom would you regard as the most heroic person of all time?" . . . "What do you think is man's greatest weakness?"

And finally there are intensely personal questions: "What causes you to feel weak in the knees?" . . . "About what do you have a mental block?" . . . "What in the world bores you most?" . . . "If you had to describe your own personal kind of hell, what would it be like?"

"We spent weeks improvising these off-the-beaten-track questions," says Stewart. "They force people to use their imagination, they force them into deep self-expression. They make people express things they have on their minds and hearts which they don't ordinarily express. They often say after an interview: 'My God, it's like going to a psychiatrist!'"

Here's a quick sampling of the kind of intimate revelations.

STEWART: If there really were reincarnation, how would you like to come back?

ZSA ZSA GABOR: Like I started but without all the mistakes I made.

STEWART: What's the quickest way for a woman to reach your heart?

ROBERT VAUGHN: The quickest way for a woman to reach my heart is adulation toward me and total silence.

STEWART: What's the best way to keep monogamy from being monotony?

ROBERT MORSE: To be honest about it? Cheat.

STEWART: Can you think of anything that is a fate worse than death?

HENRY MORGAN: Living.

The secondary aspect of this show is the insight it gives one into the celebrity panelists who are guessing. Whether they guess correctly or incorrectly, their guesses and the reasons they give for them tell us a good deal about them.

On an early show, for instance, Skitch Henderson revealed himself to be a highly sensitive man. Emcee Larry Blyden told him that Sammy Davis Jr. had been asked to define the word "love." He gave Skitch the following choices—one of which Sammy had really said: (a) "Love is wild—it's the beginning and the end of it all," (b) "It's looking across the room at your wife and just smiling—to me that's love" and (c) "Love is something we don't appreciate until it's gone." Skitch mulled this over and then said: "Because of the relationship between Sammy and Mai, I think the sort of thing he would say about love would be associated with Mai, so he would say: 'Looking across the room at your wife and just smiling.'"

When the tape of Davis was flashed on the screen, here is what he had actually said: "How would I define the word love? It is really looking across the room at your wife and → just smiling. To me that's love."

The wrong guesses, of course, can be as revealing as the right ones.

Perhaps the prize wrong guesser to date is Joan Fontaine, who utterly failed to read her sister, Olivia de Havilland, on a few crucial matters. Olivia was asked the question, "Would you make any statement about the subject of sex?" And Joan was given these three choices as her answer: (a)

"Sex is terribly overrated because so many men confuse it with honest love," (b) "I would prefer not to discuss it" and (c) "Is there a statement great enough?" Joan Fontaine chose (a) as her sister's answer, saying "I think one of the qualities my sister has is integrity . . . and I would say she thinks honest love is a very important thing and is still looking for it. So I would take the first answer—that sex is overrated as far as it is not real love sometimes."

When the tape of Olivia de Havilland was flashed on the screen she said: "Any statement at all? About the subject of sex? Is there a statement great enough?"

The little touch of dessert on the show comes when the three panelists guess at what their own images are in the public eye. This too is researched in advance by distributing mimeographed questionnaires all around the country.

For instance, the public was asked: "If Henry Morgan were the president of a bank, do you think he would (a) lend money easily, (b) demand heavy collateral on all loans or (c) pay his employees high salaries?" Morgan, asked to guess the public's choice, said: "I have great faith in the public and I think the public would say that I would demand heavy collateral on all loans." And that is precisely what the public did say!

Sometimes, however, the celebrity goofs on his own image. The public, asked whether they'd cast Bill Cullen as (a) a clever lawyer, (b) a mad scientist or (c) the fellow who doesn't get the girl, chose the last. Bill Cullen guessed that they'd cast him as a clever lawyer and was somewhat miffed by the results.

All in all the show does what it sets out to do: It satisfies the curiosity of the public about celebrities, it satisfies the curiosity of celebrities about each other and it satisfies the celebrities' curiosity about themselves. END

MICHIGAN STATE

This week: Episode 2 by MELVIN DURSLAG

If, like Peyton Place, the Notre Dame-Michigan State series is a continuing story, the Irish will take the ball on their 38 this Saturday (Oct. 28) at South Bend and we will find out what our beleaguered hero, Ara Parseghian, does this time.

When last seen against State, Ara was running out the clock, happy to get a tie in what had been billed as the biggest college football game since the dawning of history. In their last six plays the Fighting Irish, ranked No. 1 in the Nation, had chosen to freeze the ball on the ground, rather than gamble with a pass.

The match wound up 10-10 and repercussions were widespread. In Ireland this summer, your correspondent inquired of a Dubliner, a Mr. Keegan, about the reaction in the fatherland to Notre Dame's groveling for a tie. The man's face darkened. "May God fer-give them," he said solemnly.

Of the 32 college games the NCAA will parade before the TV cameras this year, the one between Notre Dame and Michigan State hardly qualifies as the most significant, because of unexpected events in early season.

Specifically, the two got themselves knocked off. But while the outcome of their match may not affect seriously that great American institution—the national football ratings—widespread interest in their game will, as always, be there.

The prospect of missing the two in palmier days last year created such a stir among fans in many parts of the country that the NCAA had to tamper with its own law in order to avoid an American mutiny. The ruling is that no school shall appear on national TV more than once a season, bowl games excluded. Prior to the Michigan State game, which was to be televised only regionally, Notre Dame had been seen nationally against Purdue.

Now the trouble began. A petition of protest from Oklahoma City—it bore 20,000 names—arrived at ABC. The mayor of Denver rapped the blackout publicly. A politician from Seattle complained that people in his area were forced to travel all the way to North Dakota to see the game. From the South came letters charging the network with discrimination. "They accused us of punishing them," says ABC's Roone Arledge, "because of the South's stand on civil rights."

Nor were station managers about the country restrained. They brought extreme pressure on the network, which, in desperation, called a meeting with the NCAA television committee to ask permission to extend coverage of the game. The vote of the committee was split, but a majority favoring wider TV finally prevailed. Except for portions of the South, which would get the game by delayed tape, all of the Nation, the NCAA ruled, would see it live.

Roughly 33,000,000 watched the game. It was the largest audience ever to see a regular-season college match. The success of the show was greeted with great hosannas in some quarters of the NCAA, but in others, enthusiasm wasn't detected. One of the dissenters on the NCAA television committee, Dr. Paul Brechler, commissioner of the Western Athletic Conference, quoted a fellow member as saying, "We have just killed college football as a Saturday afternoon spectator sport."

Brechler explained his fears to the Salt Lake Tribune. "Fans who demanded and got the 'championship game' may be shortsighted. . . . The 10,000 or so admissions that free TV may take from the big games isn't important. What we are concerned about is the effect it has on the schools that normally play before only 1000 to 3000 fans. These small schools cannot afford to lose any customers, or they may be forced to drop football . . . .

"Now that we have bowed to pressure," Brechler continued, "I am wondering what happens in the future."

A rumble long has been taking place within the NCAA between those members who get fat from television fees ($165,000 per team for a national appearance and $105,000 for a regional) and those who never make the tube.

In view of the policy at South

Bend which forbids participation in postseason football, the match with the Spartans has in the past constituted the bowl game for the Irish, whose rivalry with State has ripened into one of the hottest items in the amateur game.

Exactly why Notre Dame doesn't play in bowls isn't clear to most football scientists. They can understand why Harvard won't go to a bowl. In the Ivy League, guys are still inquiring about takers for tennis.

But Notre Dame?

All the other major members of the NCAA acknowledge that football is big business, and when the Irish avoid postseason games, they seem to be implying that they are less commercial than their colleagues.

Making this point last year, your correspondent received a note from the president of one of the Notre Dame alumni clubs, who obviously was going for more than a tie. Wrote he: "I'm shocked by your stupidity and lack of understanding."

I sat down to think about both. Notre Dame is the only team, amateur or professional, with a national radio network. It has made serious explorations into closed-circuit television. It reaps football money by the bucket. It hustles players with all the vigor with which the others do. It is a member of the NCAA, which never experienced stronger competition from the pros and whose prime showcase is postseason football. Often, Notre Dame would be a sparkling addition to the NCAA's New Year's Day show.

Finally, the academic rating of Notre Dame isn't as high as, say, that at Stanford, where the position is that it should only be so lucky as to field a team good enough to go to a bowl.

If, after weighing the foregoing factors, you, too, conclude that Notre Dame's stand on postseason football is overly righteous, then welcome to the Stupid Bowl.

He & She

Television may fairly be said to have, among other things, a flair for the usual. It was, therefore, we suppose, a reasonably good idea to put on a new and different comedy about young marrieds, one which would be played entirely for laughs—in other words, a complete farce. And it was an even better idea to get a new and different young couple who were married in real life, Dick Benjamin and Paula Prentiss, to play the parts. There was, however, one trouble. Talent Associates, with their flair for the usual, were simply not up to the job. Indeed the Associates, if not their Talent, have come up with a show which at best is mildly amusing high camp—and, at worst, is wildly confusing low bunk.

Farce is, to begin with, perilous stuff. If it goes, the lid is off—it's custard pie in the sky. But, in order for it to go, you must give your audience such a steady rolling barrage of laughs that they forget you are robbing them of all that is nearest and dearest to them—which is believability. In this show the producers did everything they evidently thought would assure this steady rolling barrage. Besides the main characters, they offered us a steady stream of supposedly screamingly funny regulars including Oscar North (Jack Cassidy), the star of a TV series based on Dick's comic strip; Harry the fireman (Kenneth Mars), who commutes to Dick and Paula's apartment via a plank over a window; and Andrew Hummel, the apartment superintendent (Hamilton Camp)—as well as some irregulars like Paula's Greek friend (Wolfe Barzelle). Since each of these characters is a one- or at best two-joke caricature—North's conceit and tightness, Harry's sensitivity, Mr. Hummel's ineptness, etc.—and each of them has the same one or at best two jokes to perform each episode, it gets increasingly hard, as we were supposed to do, to scream at the very sight of them. By the 15th time they have done the same thing, we are ready to scream—but unfortunately not with laughter.

Jack Cassidy is the worst offender. He's directed to overact, of course, but he's directed so far over that he is actually fascinatingly infuriating. Harry and Mr. Hummel are slightly less so, but their performances could still come down about 104 percent and be better.

We come at last to the question of Dick and Paula. Obviously they are kidding not only the show, the dialog and the situation, but also us. Still it would seem only fair to let us in on at least some of the jokes by letting us hear them. Dick, with his repetitions, his stares and his put-upons, is fine, but his nasal voice is a pretty harsh irritant and a lot of his throw-away lines are too much just that—literally thrown away. As for Paula, she is a lovely sight, but she is obviously an acquired taste, and we suggest that while we're trying to acquire it, she forget the broad broad she'd obviously like to be, and give us, say once a show, a straight line which is said straight.
